

TAFT'S VICTORY IS CONCEDED BY EVEN HIS STRENUOUS OPPONENT WHO ACCEPTS THE SITUATION

OLD BAY STATE GAVE PRESIDENT HANDSOME VOTE THROUGHOUT EVERY DISTRICT AT TUESDAY'S PRIMARIES.

HAS CLEAN MAJORITY

Champ Clark Also Is Choice of Democrats Although Many Delegates Pledged to Foss Are Elected In Certain Districts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Boston, May 1.—Massachusetts emerged from her first presidential preference primary election to find that the republican voters had expressed a preference for the renomination of President Taft but notwithstanding had given Colonel Roosevelt 18 of the 36 delegates to the national convention.

Favor Clark. The democratic voters of the state expressed a preference for Champ Clark, although a majority of the delegates to Baltimore will go pledged to Clay Foss. Returns from 167 out of 1080 election precincts gives republican preferential preference. La Follette 1756, Roosevelt 71,293, Taft 74,808.

Delegates at large from 74,121; Crane headline Taft group 65,574; Democratic preferential preference. Clark 19,202; Wilson 8206.

Delegates at large from 74,121; Crane headline Taft group 65,574; Democratic preferential preference. Clark 19,202; Wilson 8206.

Earlier Returns. This morning reports from 1010 out of 1080 precincts in the state gave Taft 84,948, Roosevelt 75,561 and La Follette 1960 in the republican preferential primaries and from the same districts Clark 32,952 and Wilson 14,859 in the democratic vote. Despite Taft's total vote however, the vote for the eight delegates at large, those headed by Baxter, the Roosevelt candidate defeated the Crane ticket, known to be for Taft. The Baxter group having 82,476 to the Crane groups 74,833.

Fault of Primary Law. This discrepancy is the result of an unforeseen term in the state primary law. Taft had a margin of 5,000 but the Roosevelt delegation at large had a plurality of 7,852. In the eighth district, considered a doubtful district, Taft carried it by a vote of 6,216 to Roosevelt's 6,165. However it is expected that the delegates elected under the caption for Theodore Roosevelt will vote for him and disregard the Taft preferential majority. Willa-Clark carried the state for the democrats still due to the wording of primary law which confused many voters.

Voted for Nine. One reason given for the loss of the state delegation at large is that the voters cast their ballots for the nine names on the ticket instead of for eight which made their votes invalid. The dispute over the various delegations is not yet finished but it is expected that Roosevelt and Taft will split the delegation, Roosevelt taking ten district delegates, and eight delegates at large and Taft eighteen district delegates.

Taft Pleased. Savannah, May 1.—The president received his first information of the results of the Massachusetts primary when he reached this city. Although he remained in his private car until late last night he got no news from Washington or Boston. The information that he was leading in the preference vote pleased the president greatly and he was hopeful that later news might be still more encouraging. He made no comment.

Roosevelt Delighted. New York, May 1.—Col. Roosevelt was in high feather. He was greatly pleased to add with the result in Massachusetts which in the light of incomplete he declared he regarded as a great victory. Roosevelt declined, however, to say more until complete returns have been received.

Both Make Claims. Washington, D. C., May 1.—Victory in the Massachusetts primary was claimed today by both Taft and Roosevelt national campaign managers, in a statement today Director McKinley of the national Taft bureau declared that "President Taft has carried Massachusetts beyond all doubt" and that the Roosevelt delegate at large would be "morally bound to vote for President Taft."

Dixon Waits. Senator Dixon, manager of the Roosevelt headquarters in a general review preceding the giving out of a formal statement said he would "let Colonel Roosevelt speak for himself" whether or not the presidential preference vote is binding upon the Roosevelt delegates at large who appear to have been endorsed.

Senator Dixon's statement gave but fourteen delegates to Taft. The McKinley statement credited twenty-five to Taft and left the other ten "doubtful."

Renounces Claims. Oyster Bay, May 1.—Colonel Roosevelt renounced his claims today to the eight delegates at large to the national convention in Massachusetts yesterday. He telegraphed that he would expect them to vote for President Taft in this action he said because of the fact that President Taft carried the state on the presidential preference vote.

In Pennsylvania. Harrisburg, May 1.—The republican state convention in session here today is under control of the Roosevelt forces headed by former state senator William Flynn and it is planned by the leaders that the program throughout will be progressive from top to bottom.

The republican state convention today was dominated by delegates favoring Roosevelt and it adopted a "progressive" platform which lauded Roosevelt and omitted mention of Taft or the work of his administration.

Underwood in Florida. Jacksonville, Florida, May 1.—Oscar W. Underwood has won the Florida presidential primary over Governor Woodford Wilson if the incomplete returns from yesterday's allotting vote not materially changed. The count of votes has been slow.

KEEP CLOSE WATCH FOR AUTO BANDITS

Chicago Police Will Exert Efforts to Arrest Men Who Rob Girls and Make Escape by Automobiles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, May 1.—Strict orders were given to policemen today to watch for criminals who utilize automobiles in their attacks. The order was inspired by the attack on Marion Gorecki, a girl student at the University of Chicago high school, who was waylaid and robbed of her jewelry by men who dragged her into an auto, and by the depredations of a band of three men who yesterday robbed the cashier of a banking company occupying in an auto.

Another auto mystery which the police are attempting to solve became public with the statement of Amelia Neumann, nineteen years old, employed by a professor at the University of Chicago, that she had been pulled into an auto, abused and robbed by three men last Thursday. From the similarity of the circumstances the authorities believe the men who attacked Miss Gorecki were those who ill-treated Miss Neumann.

The robbers who attacked the cashier have not been arrested, but motorcycle police, after a spectacular chase, overhauled an auto of the same description as the one used by them. The chauffeur would not stop and sought to force the motorcycle police into a curb. Hiding at a forty-mile an hour the police jumped to the running board of the auto and clutched the chauffeur into submission. In his cap was found $100 in bills and he is believed to be the driver of the robber car.

From the chauffeur the police received information which they believe will aid them in capturing the robbers.

RELIEF RUSHED TO HOMELESS HUNDREDS

Flood Conditions Near Torrora, La., Described as Worst During Period of High Water.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Torrora, La., May 1.—Relief is being rushed to hundreds of marooned families in the flooded territory north of this place. Food depots have been fixed at points convenient for purposes of distribution.

Terrible conditions prevail in the black river section. In many instances parents and their children have taken refuge on rafts which they share with live stock. A. S. Stinson, who arrived from a trip over Concordian, Catiboula and Tensas parishes says that all of those parishes were under water with the exception of a few towns protected by levees.

"The inhabitants are homeless and destitute," he said. "Five thousand white persons along the black river are in a desperate fix. The government supplies received there are inadequate. Many families expecting the flood, bull rafts, and when the water came they moved their household goods aboard. Horses, cows, pigs, chickens dogs and cats are sharing these rafts with the farmers and their families. The rafts are anchored to trees and that's the way they are living now. The bawling of the cattle could be heard a great distance. The people not only need food for themselves, but provender for the live stock."

The water continued to rise in this district yesterday. The gauge at the Torrora bridge has shown an advance of four inches within twenty-four hours.

METHODISTS EXPECT CONFERENCE FIGHT

Standing of Denomination on Worldly Amusement Question Will Be Decided at Minneapolis Session.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—Already interest is keen among the delegates who assembled to attend the opening here of the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist church as to what action shall be taken on the proposal to change the present discipline of the church governing amusements. The rule prohibiting dancing, games of chance, theatregoing, circus and horse racing as being "a tendency toward worldliness," the proposition as to its retention or rejection has been referred to the committee for consideration.

The synod as presented to the committee, set forth that John Wesley, to guide the conduct of the early Methodists, drew up a rule which "forbid taking of such diversions as cannot be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus."

"This left to the individual to decide what specific amusements were proper," it stated.

In 1872, the general conference, "shocked at the increasing worldliness in the church," inserted a rule similar to the present one. Among the arguments advanced against the opposition to the rule as presented to the committee are:

"It violates the Christian freedom of the church."
"It is a source of constant irritation."
"It violates pedagogical principles."
"It puts many in an unjust attitude as to duty to the church."
"It keeps many conscientious people out of the church."
"It breeds hypocrisy."
"It has not added to the spirituality in the church."

Arguments for the continuance of the rule are:

"It repeats many conscientious people out of the church."
"It breeds hypocrisy."
"It has not added to the spirituality in the church."

ATTEMPT TO BRING ABOUT REPEAL OF LAW FRUSTRATED

Resolutions Asking for Special Session for Purpose of Repealing Income Tax Law, Voted Down in Assembly and Senate.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., May 1.—The first fight of the special session of the Wisconsin legislature centered in an attempt looking to the repeal of the income tax law. In both houses it was summarily frustrated, the vote in the assembly being 42 to 11 and in the senate 20 to 5.

Chancellor Yeokey of Milwaukee led the movement in the assembly and H. H. Hodenstab was sponsor for the resolution in the senate. Both joint resolutions were of the same effect: to request the governor to call a special session, to be convened immediately upon the adjournment of the present session, for the purpose of repealing the income tax law. In the assembly Mr. Yeokey's resolution was referred to the revenue committee, but the author at once moved suspension of the rules and asked that it be placed on its passage. Assemblyman Hodenstab asked whether the resolution was genuine under the governor's call, to which Speaker Ingram replied that in his opinion it was not. From this decision Mr. Yeokey appealed and in the roll call that followed the speaker was sustained by the following vote:

Ayes:—Ballard, Berner, Biehler, Bligham, Blinn, Brockhausen, Clark, Crawford, Draper, Ellingson, Evans, Fauske, French, Frye, Gottle, Gilroy, Hanks, Harper, Hintz, Hofmeister, Hull, Harbath, Jansen, Axel Johnson, Chris Johnson, J. H. Jones, Kahn, Lauder, Lentz, Mahon, McKee, Miller, Monahan, Mott, Nelson, Nye, O'Day, Orstad, Parkhouse, Piekari, Plowman, Potts, Rosier, Roycraft, Rupp, Schroeder, Schmidt, Sholtz, Sorce, Spicer, Stevenson, Thomas, Urquhardt, Wells, Youmans.

Noes:—Berg, Eschler, Gilberson, Morton, Perry, Reider, Reed, Stern, Velehn, Wheelan, Yeokey.—11.

Speaker Ingram was excused from voting upon his own decision. Mr. Perry explained that he would like to sustain the speaker but that he believed the resolution was in order, and assemblyman Reed, Stern and Velehn expressed a like opinion. Mr. Yeokey said he voted no because, he said, there are 2,500,000 people in this state who are opposed to this law.

The vote showed only two democrats—Velehn and Wheelan—voted for repeal of the law, and that all of the republicans voted with the administration members against repeal. Gilberson of Eau Claire, republican, voted with the minority because he wanted the question to come before the house; he believed, however, the tax a good thing and he would stand for it.

In the senate the Hodenstab resolution was killed by the following vote: Ayes:—Albers, Blaine, Donald, Gaylord, Hocking, James, Klemm, Kloss, Krumpholtz, Kullerstrom, Libbey, Ransboro, Scott, Townsend, True, Weigle, White, Whithead, Stevens, Zolty.—29.

Noes:—Hodenstab, Burke, Lyons, Perry, Snover, Thomas.—6.

The assembly organized by reelecting the old officers and employees—Charles A. Ingram of Durand, remaining as speaker; C. E. Shaffer of Madison, chief clerk; and W. S. Irvine of Greenwood as sergeant-at-arms. George E. Morton of Milwaukee, elected to succeed Assemblyman Carl H. Bomer, deceased, was sworn in. He was designated by Speaker Ingram to Mr. Bomer's committee—libraries and vocational education.

The senate, like the assembly, adopted the rules of the last session with slight modifications. Senator R. C. Martin of Burlington, was elected vice president and F. M. Wyllie of Morrisville chief clerk.

Senators Donald and Snover and Assemblyman Roycraft, Biehler and Brockhausen constituted the joint committee to escort Governor McGovern to the chamber. The Governor read his message, the reading occupying about three-quarters of an hour. The senate sent a message of sympathy to Senator Isaac T. Bishop of Stennis, who is ill.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE BEFORE LEGISLATURE

RECOMMENDS RELIEF FOR BLACK RIVER FALLS AND PORTAGE LEVEE PROTECTION.

PASS UP INCOME TAX

Executive Expresses Hope That Work Will Be Finished in a Week—Water Power Legislation Supported.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., May 1.—The importance of urgent legislation in ten special subjects was laid before the Wisconsin legislature last night by Governor Francis J. McGovern in his message to that body on the opening day of the extraordinary session. The executive noted with regret the necessity of calling them from their daily duties to take up the burdens of state, and referred to their work in the 1911 session as "transcending in importance" the achievements of any preceding body. The emergency, however, demanded the sacrifice.

The message contains no word with reference to the income tax, for the obvious reason that Gov. McGovern did not include that topic in his call. Although not intended to be included in the call, non-partisan elections for Milwaukee are treated in the message as a measure for which a great deal of work has arisen which he did not feel like pressing by unaided. He recommends the enactment of such legislation at this session.

Governor McGovern concluded his message by expressing the hope that the work might be finished within a week, and he urged that the utmost dispatch consistent with due care be employed in the legislation at hand.

The governor's message may be summarized as follows: Relief for Black River Falls. Relief is asked for those rendered homeless or destitute by the flood, for the removal of the debris, the repair of the sewage system, etc. It is suggested that the city's indebtedness of about $31,000 to the trust funds of the state be cancelled, at the same time transferring an equal sum from the general fund to the trust funds to keep the latter intact. The state may not appropriate money to support the schools nor build the business section. The governor suggests that the expense of building a retaining wall be met by making an appropriation from the drainage fund, thereby avoiding constitutional objections.

Portage Levee. It is recommended that enough money be appropriated to protect the city of Portage and the Fox and Wisconsin rivers valleys from danger from overflow, and an equitable distribution of the expense of repair.

Water Power Regulation. The Black River Falls disaster is cited as an instance of improperly built dams. Public control of dams is recommended in the interest of "public safety and the general welfare." Legislation is declared to be needed for attaining ownership and operation by the public of all waterpowers in the state whenever the people desire it.

Weights and Measures. Relief for berry growers and commission men from certain "harsh and unnecessary requirements" of this new law is asked, to the end that "unexpected hardship" be not imposed. "Particularly in the case of berry boxes and peach baskets they (the producers and dealers) way they have not had sufficient notice to enable them to comply with the new law," says the governor.

Sale of Public Lands. It is recommended that Chapter 452 of the laws of 1911 be amended to prevent all speculation in public lands and limit sales to actual settlers.

Amendment to Election Laws. The enactment of a law to validate the nominations and elections held on April 2, 1912, over which the wording of the new appointment act cast an element of uncertainty, is recommended. The governor advocates the passage of a non-partisan election bill for the city of Milwaukee but focuses to endorse the same plan with respect to the county, arguing that county officers are essentially state officers who are elected generally on the fall election day along with the state officers, members of the legislature, president, etc., when the voting is "openly and frankly partisan."

Loyals Associations. Amendment to the law to make more definite and certain the conditions under which Loyals associations may be admitted to transact a Wisconsin business is proposed.

Home Rule for Cities. In view of the fact that the constitutionality of the home rule law was not decided by the Supreme court, at a recent sitting, the governor refrains from making any recommendation in this matter.

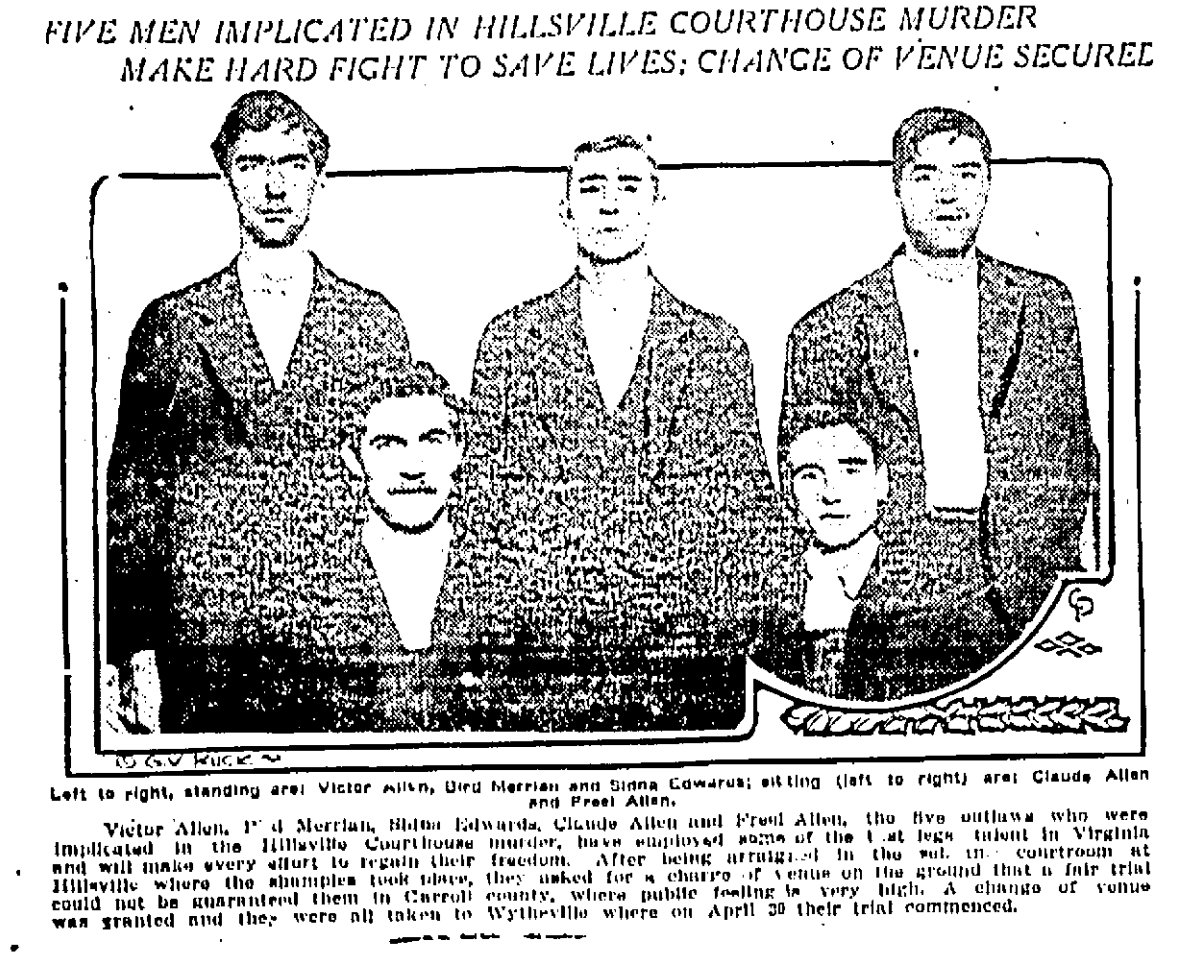

Amendment to the Fish and Game Laws. Legislation to permit the state game warden to take rough fish from state waters to be sold for state revenue is proposed.

INVENTS NEW WAY FOR TESTING TEA;
ADULTERATORS NOW MORE CAUTIOUS

Miss Alberta Head.

It has remained for a woman, in the Agricultural Department at Washington, to invent a new way for testing tea which will do more to prevent adulteration than all the inspectors in Uncle Sam's employ put together. Miss Alberta Head is the one to whom the honor belongs. She has been in the department for some time, but it is only recently that she set herself to the task of devising the new system. Miss Head is a thorough chemist and her plan is most scientific.

NO HONEYMOON FOR YOUNG ELOPERS;
JUVENILE SWEETHEARTS LAND IN JAIL

Rowena Miller and Harry Gregg, taken in the cell at police headquarters.

"All the world loves a lover," sang the poet, but he had never been to Ohio or Pennsylvania. Two youthful elopers from Pittsburg, Pa., wished to be joined in matrimony, and as the local authorities at their home would not grant a license, they decided to elope to Pittsburgh. When they arrived, they were denied a license there also, and wandered to Cleveland. The Cleveland authorities brought the romance to an end by not only refusing a license, but by locking the two up.

HEART AND HOME TALKS
BY BARBARA BOYD

The Broadening Meaning of Wifehood

A SUCCESSFUL business man said the other day, "I would want a wife who would go every morning to her desk the same as I go to mine." That is a statement that almost takes one's breath away. And yet it is a sentiment that is growing among men. Association with women in business have taught men that there is greater pleasure in companionship with a woman in touch with the affairs of the world than with one who merely knows household matters. Men are coming to see, too, that though good food and a well-kept house are essential, these are merely the foundations upon which to build finer things in the way of living. And so the progressive and broad-minded man of today is coming around to realize that the progressive and broad-minded woman is a true helpmate to the man who knows nothing but the three C's, as the Germans express it—clothes, children and cooking.

Women in the past twenty years have more generally realized this than men. When woman began to find herself and to see that the world, all the world, was just as much hers as man's, she began to perceive also how much more inspiring and useful a wife and mother she would be, as a symmetrical developed individual than as one developed in only one direction. As she came to realize her powers, she knew she could be wife and mother and much more besides.

All this has come about quite naturally and shows it is but a step forward in our march toward better things. Not only has much of the work of women in the home been taken out of the home, but the home itself is moving toward hotels and apartment houses. But as the home is not a matter of food on the table or furniture in the parlor, but of atmosphere, it is no less home in an apartment house than in a two-story residence on a little street. But the change does make a difference to the wife's routine of living. If she has brains in her head and red blood in her veins, she will not sit with idle hands, now that much of her work has been taken from her. And she has not. She has seen that this change is giving her the opportunity to be a more-real companion for her husband and she is putting on her hat, going out into the world, and learning the things that are after all his chief interests.

So she is developing and broadening herself, making her life richer, becoming a more inspiring wife and a more enjoyable companion, a wiser and more self-controlled mother.

And so the man who sees in a big way, who doesn't want a wife who is only something in the nature of a valet says, "I want a wife who will go to her desk in the morning the same as I go to mine." For he knows what this will mean in the way of development for her. He knows she will be more alive, a more congenial companion. And after all, with any but the most selfish men, this is the real happiness of marriage.

STATE WILL ABSORB FISHING BUSINESS

License System Will Be Repealed and State Will Assume Local Fishing Rights According to New Bill.

Local fishermen will be interested in the most radical bill ever introduced in a Wisconsin legislature for the regulation of the fishing industry which was introduced at the special session of the legislature at Madison.

It completely reverses the time-honored policy of the state and inaugurates a system for the taking of all rough fish by the state fish and game warden directly or by contract.

The new bill repeals the entire license system in vogue in Wisconsin for over twenty years. It absorbs the local fishermen's business which in recent years has grown to enormous proportions in the Mississippi river, Lake Pepin, and the tributary waters of Lakes Superior and Michigan.

The value of the fishing rights has led to a controversy between the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin to the boundary line in Lake Pepin, and the two states appointed a boundary commission during the recent regular session of their legislatures.

The reason back of the new bill is that the state fish and game warden is convinced that the local fishing business is profitable. The plan outlined in the bill has been given a trial by the state game warden's department in several small inland lakes, with surprising financial results. It is this success that has prompted the state game warden to ask the state for permission to take over the entire fishing business and conduct it as a state enterprise. State Game Warden John A. Sholis is enthusiastic over this plan and predicts that the financial returns would build the new $5,000,000 state capital without the aid of an additional state tax.

The bill as originally drawn makes no distinction between inland and outlying waters, but it is understood that State Game Warden Sholis is willing, in view of the opposition developing, to accept an amendment to confine its application to inland waters of the state; but as the Mississippi river is among the waters inland, determined objection will be made by the representatives from the western part of the state, including Senators Owen, Speaker Ingram and Assemblymen McConnell and Long, who are members of the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary commission.

The unusual proportions of this industry to the Mississippi river and Lake Pepin fishermen are apparent from the fact that last year the amount received in license fees by the state of Wisconsin aggregated over $1,500. Several thousand men are engaged in fishing as a livelihood, and several manufacturers of boxes, netting and accessories in the state have been established through the demands of the local business.

The text of the bill is as follows:

"Section 1. Section 450a-2 of the statutes is repealed."

"Section 2. Section 450f-10 of the statutes is amended to read: Section 450f-10."

"1. The state fish and game warden is authorized to take or cause to be taken by means of nets from any of the waters in this state, buffalo fish, carp, dogfish, garfish, eel, pickerel, redhorse, sheepshead, or suckers whenever he shall find that such fish or any of them are detrimental to and tend to retard the propagation of or to destroy game fish therein; and the said fish and game warden may contract in writing with any person or persons to remove or to assist him in removing such fish or any of them as above provided from such waters, but work under any such contract shall be performed only when supervised by the said fish and game warden or by a deputy warden."

"2. All such fish taken under the provisions of this section shall be sold by the state fish and game warden for the best price obtainable by him therefor, and the proceeds of such sales shall be paid into the state treasury to be placed in the general fund."

"3. Compensation for work performed under any contract entered into by the state fish and game warden shall be paid out of money in the general fund received from the sale of fish under this section, and all claims under any such contract shall be certified by the state fish and game warden and audited by the secretary of state, who shall issue his warrant therefor upon the state treasury."

"4. For the purpose of keeping such fish until the same can be disposed of to the best interests of the state, the state fish and game warden may create temporary fish ponds in the waters of this state."

"Section 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication."

WE HAVE WITH US TODAY

Victor Berger.

Washington, D. C.—Victor Berger, of Milwaukee, is the lone Socialist in Congress. His party could not be better represented in the national legislature, for Berger is a clear thinker and good debater. He has had the honor of introducing many bills. Few of them, however, have ever received the serious consideration of his colleagues. Berger never forgets the common people. They are the objects of his constant solicitude. While others sing the praises of the rich and powerful, Berger tries to find something good to say about the poor and unfortunate. Hence his colleagues in the house the other day were not surprised when he arose and declared that "the real heroes of the Titanic went down to death unsmiling and their bravery unimpaired." The millionaires are getting credit for such a large share of courage that nobody has been paying any attention to the "poor devils" of the levantine. "Every year we kill thousands simply in order to save money and pay dividends," Berger continued. "The Titanic horror is only one instance. There are now plenty of bills pending in congress to safeguard ocean travel—just because the wealthy class was hurt. Some will become laws—just because the wealthy class was hurt. Until a crowd of millionaires are affected, we will never get safety appliances on boats, in mines, or on railroads. "Grand and speed are the characteristics of the capitalist system. They caused the Titanic disaster, and are making disasters almost as appalling every day in the industrial world. But they are not millionaires that die—they are poor, the workmen—like the engineers, the firemen, the sailors on the Titanic. "I don't want to belittle the heroism of the rich on board that ill-fated vessel. They were brave and their bravery should be applauded. But we do not want to lose sight of the fact that the real heroes were the working people—those that stuck to their posts of duty on the ship—the engineers, for example. "Fifty per cent of the first-class passengers were saved, a smaller per cent of the steerage."

To be served with the discharge of this nature deprives the recipient of the right to ever hold a government position. The next serious charge deprives the person of citizenship.

HIGH PRICES RULE PROVISION MARKET

Beef Prices Soar in New York City and Corn, Potatoes, and Other Articles, Are at High Marks.

[By Associated Press.]

New York, May 1.—The wholesale and retail price of beef has reached the highest point in 20 years in this city. Prices here have been climbing for three weeks and packers say that with corn at 81 cents a bushel, the farmers are not feeding cattle.

Potatoes, too, are selling at record prices as the scarcity of production is given as the cause. A Washington market dealer said today if it had not been for the importation of the low grade English potatoes recently, there would have been a potato famine in New York.

The marketing committee of the state food investigation commission has also been told there is an extreme shortage of butter.

The company asks the court to permit the payment of costs and a fine of $55,000 to satisfy the judgement and agrees to obey the anti-trust laws. The motion sets forth that the company has separated itself from other companies in accordance with the decree of the U. S. court. ### The message predated a debate in the senate.

Senator Bacon and Lodge concurred in the opinion that if the Monroe doctrine did not cover the situation a new doctrine covering it could be created. Senator Raynor said that if Japan established a base of supply or enclaving station in Mexico, he would regard the act as a declaration of war.

HIT HUMOR STRINGS OF DISCORDANT LYRE

SPEAKERS IN WITTY MOOD AT SOCIAL UNION CLUB LADIES' NIGHT BANQUET.

END SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Annual Affair of Club at Y. M. C. A.
Auditorium Last Evening Lacked Nothing in Entertaining Qualities.

Notes of discord, old and new, humorous and satirical, frivolous and serious, were struck on "The Discordant Lyre" by the speakers on the program of the Social Union club ladies' night banquet at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening. The topic of the evening offered abundant opportunity for jest and the speakers rose to the occasion with witty and entertaining speeches.

After a short reception the banquet was announced at seven o'clock and the guests took their places at the artistically decorated banquet boards. A canopy of green and white streamers was hung over the tables which were lighted by a series of brightly shaded electric lights and decorated with red geranium plants with pink roses and carnations scattered at intervals. The following menu was faultlessly served by a corps of young ladies and gentlemen:

Pickled Olives      Baked Potatoes
Pressured Veal      Creamed Potatoes
Deviled Eggs
Mint Sherbet
White and Brown Bread
Cheese Balls
Fruit Salad
Sultanas
Vanilla Ice Cream      Strawberries
Chocolate Cake

Coffee
The Rev. E. O. Hunsicker presided as toastmaster and introduced the speakers with appropriate remarks. The first note sounded was that of "discord" by A. Gardner Kaveland who interpreted his subject as dealing with the money question. The speaker illustrated his speech with humorous stories, but conveyed the idea that money perhaps, after all is the "root of all evil." In his opinion the greatest trouble begins when the young man starts to lead the "double life" and then, indeed, the money question is the cause of strife. The address was closed with a peroration of some oratorical eloquence in which Mr. Kaveland, with mock pessimism, declared that he "shrunk from what the future had in store and he could truly say that he had lived long enough."

Miss Teresa Baker also spoke on the note, "dough," but in another octave. She confessed at the outset that she had had little experience with "dough" and admitted that what she had to say was purely on hearsay authority. From this she has understood that most domestic discords arise from "dough." There is the man's "dough" and the woman's "dough," and each plays an important part. "The wife needs the 'dough' which her husband earns to make the 'dough' which they both find necessary, and unless each does his or her part discord results. Of course, the speaker found that the man's 'dough' was the easiest to get and that, he was usually to blame for the discordant notes.

P. A. Taylor arose to sound the note, "me," in which he succeeded with an egotism which might be justified from the man's point of view from which he was admittedly speaking. Mr. Taylor continued the words "lyre" and "lar" at the opening of his talk, but settling down to the question in hand told of man's blissful existence in the Garden of Eden before the advent of Eve by means of an operation on himself. From that time can be dated all the discord, said the speaker. The first official act that Eve did was to form a club to get what she wanted which, of course, aroused trouble. Man of himself is a veritable angel, was the speaker's idea, but woman's influence on him had been responsible for the discordant notes.

Miss Helen Vismann hit the note of "me" an octave higher than the purely woman standpoint. By a number of comparisons she brought out the many beautiful qualities of a woman's character which, she said, was so sensitively tuned that the least discord sent a shock through her being. When a man comes into a woman's life there is the greatest discord. The jars her sensibilities at every turn. But through it all the self-sacrifice, nobility, charm, sweetness, charity and beauty of a woman's character is the saving grace.

Closing the evening's discord Prof. H. C. Huell spoke on "feet" and attempted to restore harmony. He considered in a more serious vein the subject of discord, especially domestic discord. He expressed the thought that it was a matter of national importance that the home be preserved as sacred. It was a matter of patriotism as well as individual happiness. As far as the financial discords were concerned he believed that the man and woman had equal responsibilities, but that the money matter should not be magnified so that it would dull the enjoyment of the many more valuable things in life.

Miss Gertrude Homingway gave a reading in a very charming and delightful manner which treated very appropriately of the discords which exist between the men and the women.

Her selection was "The Quirrel Scene Between Sir Peter and Lady Teazle," from "The School for Scandal," by Sheridan.

The musical numbers of the program consisted of several delightful selections by the Jamesville Symphony orchestra during the dinner hour and another preceding the program. Misses Lewis and Savarill appeared in a vocal duet, "The Dance of the Fays," and responded to an encore. A piano duet by Miss Mae Trent and Mrs. George Hyde proved exceptionally pleasing, and several vocal solos by Arthur Schoof, "An Open Secret" and "Meet Me By Moonlight Alone," were rendered with wonderful expression to close the evening's program.

Much credit for the success of the affair is due the committee in charge composed of D. D. Mancroes, chairman, Claude Aldin, Walter Aris, W. W. Dale and Walter Kohler.

ORIENTAL MISS ON VOTING LIST

On the voting lists of Los Angeles is one name which may mean much to the entire orient, for its proud possessor has avowed that she is going to return to her native land and there teach the principal of equal rights for women. Miss Myra Lee is the young lady and she has the satisfaction of being the first Chinese woman ever to vote in the United States.

Noted Churchmen to Visit Canada. London, May 1.—A party of more than one hundred noted clergymen and religious workers of the United Kingdom sailed from Bristol today for Canada. They are officers and members of the Federated Brotherhood of the Old Land, which has a MADOCKAWANDO.

Madockawando, sachem and war chief of the mighty Penobscot tribe, had a grievance. He had often declared that he and his people could live on terms of peace and good fellowship with the English colonists. He had ordered the Penobscots to preserve such peace, and he loyally relied on a treaty his adopted father, Assamiquiqua, had long ago made with the settlers. And now those same settlers were behaving toward the Penobscots in a way that the wildest stretch of imagination could not construe as friendly or even peaceable. It is not pleasant to be forced to eat one's own words of praise; and Madockawando rebelled at the task. Instead, he broke his history with a series of dramatic deeds which made his name a terror along the Maine frontier.

Madockawando was born in Maine, about 1630. His people's lands for the most part lay to the east of the Penobscot river and were a part of the much-harassed province of Acadia. The French had formerly owned Acadia, lost it to the English and, in 1647, recovered it. The English, however, still claimed the territory between the St. Croix and Penobscot rivers. Boundaries disputes arose; and in these disputes Madockawando and his Indians suddenly found themselves involved. Between the French and the English, they were as the blackest cloth between the blades of a pair of shears.

The Man With a Grievance.

The English especially riled them and seized much Penobscot land, and there was more than one conflict between savages and settlers. The Indians' crops were destroyed, their hunting grounds overrun. The Penobscots could not understand. They sent ambassadors to Boston to protest against these outrages and to demand fair treatment. The ambassadors were seized, disarmed and thrown into prison. The English took, indeed, some perfunctory steps toward reconciliation. But, as they could make no definite promises of restitution or of better conduct, affairs only grew worse. Madockawando made a fervent appeal to the English commissioners at a formal council wherein he set forth his grievances, and ended by asking:

"What are we to do for winter supplies, now that our crops are gone? How can we buy powder and shot? Shall we die of hunger or appeal to the French for aid?"

The commissioners evaded the questions and advised him to wait until they could confer with the colonial governor. But the sachem replied: "We have already waited. Now we exact our answer."

As the commissioners could—or would—grant him no satisfaction, Madockawando threw aside his peaceful intentions and went on the war path. During his wholesale ravages he seized sixty settlers and held them as hostages for his own imprisoned envoys. But these white prisoners did not suffer as did most colonists who fell into hostile Indians' hands. Madockawando forbade all torture or other ill-treatment of prisoners and would permit no unnecessary brutality in any of the war's campaigns.

Every English settlement in that part of Maine was destroyed, and the whole region was terrorized by Madockawando. The English, to curb the fighting spirit they had aroused, tried diplomacy where force had failed them. In 1678 they consented to a new treaty whereby the Maine settlers whom Madockawando had driven away might return to their farms on the condition of paying rent to the Indians for the land they had once sought to seize by right of strength. This was a triumph for Madockawando, and a few years of peace followed. But other warlike influences were soon at work. The notorious Baron de St. Castine married one of Madockawando's daughters, and thus helped not only to draw the Penobscots toward the French, but to strengthen a sort of feudal power he himself was building up.

A War of Vengeance.
The English governor, Andros, sailed to Penobscot in 1688, burned and plundered St. Castine's "castle" there and destroyed his fort. Madockawando flew to arms in his son-in-law's behalf, and a new border war set in.

The chief event of this war was Madockawando's attack on the town of York, Maine, in 1691. He burnt the town to the ground, killed 77 of its inhabitants and carried away 85 prisoners. This was but one of a number of raids wherein Madockawando, with his braves or with their French allies, made the frontier a place of over-present peril. He was paying his debt of grievances against the English with usurious interest.

In 1698 Madockawando died. Some historians believe he was treacherously murdered, with other Indian chiefs, by Capt. Pasco Chubb during a "peace conference" at Pennaquid. He was altogether the most humane savage of his century and one of the bravest of all Indian war-chiefs.

CALIFORNIA GIRL HELD FOR MURDER

Viola Carver.

Believing the ends of Viola Carver, who shot J. B. Edge and is now awaiting trial, to present unusual features, District Attorney Frederick of Los Angeles, took the accused woman to his office for a conference, and later to his home for the same purpose. The prosecutor had been placed in possession of facts which led him to believe that the girl was in an abnormal state of mind at the time she shot young Edge. According to Miss Carver, she bought the gun for the purpose of shooting herself, but when she went to Edge's office, in her excitement, instead of turning the gun upon herself she pointed it at him.

What's The Matter With Your Baby?

The young mother—and many an old one, too—is often puzzled to know the cause of her child's ill nature. The loudness of its crying does not necessarily indicate the seriousness of its trouble. It may have nothing more the matter with it than a headache or a feeling of general distress. It cannot, of course, describe its feelings, but as a preliminary measure you are safe in trying a mild laxative.

Many times out of ten, you will find it is all the child needs, for its restlessness and peevishness are perhaps due to obstruction of the bowels, and once that has been remedied the headache, the sluggishness and the many other evidences of constipation and indigestion will quickly disappear.

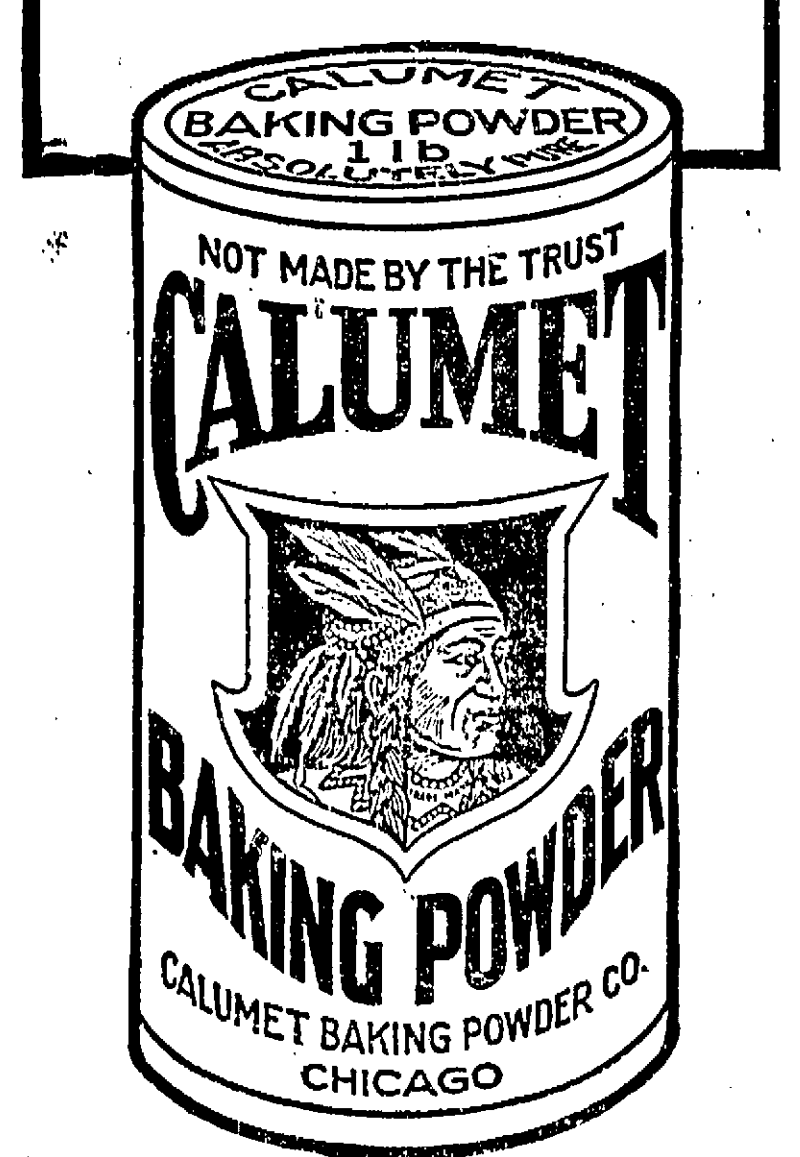

Don't give the little one salts, cathartic pills or nasty waters, for these will act as purgatives, and they are too strong for a child. In the families of Mrs. E. A. Thelin, Manuel, N. D., and Mrs. Henry Jensen, Granton, Wis., the only laxative given is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been found to answer most perfectly all the purposes of a laxative and its very mildness and freedom from gripping recommend it especially for the use of children, women, and old folks generally—people who need a gentle bowel stimulant. Thousands of American families have been enthusiastic about it for more than a quarter of a century.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. D. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

DORR'S LITTLE REBELLION.

By A. W. MACY.

The little state of Rhode Island contains only 1,250 square miles, but it is big enough to have had a rebellion of its own. In 1839 Charles I. Dorr, the Rhode Island colony a charter, according to which only those owning a certain amount of property were entitled to the right of suffrage. Curiously enough this provision was held to remain in force for 180 years; that is, till 1843. In 1841 there was an agitation to change the provision, and it resulted in the formation of two parties, the "Suffrage" and the "Law and Order." Each determined to secure the administration of affairs, and each elected a set of state officers. The "Suffrage" party chose Thomas W. Dorr as governor, and took possession of the state arsenal. The militia was called out and Dorr was obliged to flee. He made another attempt, but was overpowered by United States troops. He was tried, convicted of treason, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. After the excitement died off he was pardoned and the people adopted the present free constitution.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The boys sat half-dazed for several minutes, while the colonel's fierce old eyes twinkled above them. Then Solano spoke, slowly, measuring his words.

"His Excellency made much progress with his plans."
"Yes, Wonderful progress. The Latin-Americans in nearly every nation have accepted his propaganda blindly. They honestly believe that the United States, hand-hungry, eager for conquest, intends sooner or later to annex and colonize the whole world of Mexico, Central and South America. Once president of Mexico, Estel would consolidate his empire of 'mutual defense and vested rights' in less than two years. Then he would sell his alliance to Japan or Germany. Both are eager to gain his friendship, and both are making him tremendous offers. He is financing his revolution with Japanese and German gold. Japanese and German spies swarm all over this country, bribing, scheming, working to gain the secrets of defense and military policy. Japanese and German agents also try to block every avenue by which certain messages could be conveyed to Gomez Estel. If those messages reach him I believe his dreams will be shocked into sudden awakening, and a great light will burst upon him."

"How—how do you mean, colonel?" Brockett questioned.

"Because," and the old soldier's words fairly burned their way through the very souls of his young auditors—"because both Japan and Germany have every plan arranged by which Estel is to be deceived, betrayed, and made a cat's paw. Germany proposes, if the United States is crippled, to seize upon Brazil and make it the home of Prussia's overflowing millions. Japan already counts upon Sonora and Lower California as part of the Pacific empire which the milkade is to ruin. These schemes are all matured, and the execution of the plans would be commenced as soon as the war was over. In other words, Gomez Estel, dreaming of a great Latin nation, is to be awakened by the shock of finding himself the tool of a great land-grabbing nation, and his new-formed nation the prey of Germany or of Japan."

"And," asked Solano, eagerly, "how do we figure in this drama of the nations?"

"You have quite a part to play," said the old soldier. "If I am not mistaken, the packet which you carry to Gomez Estel contains not only the cipher code, and messages from the United States to Estel, but absolutely irrefutable proofs of the Japanese and German treachery—proofs made out in the cipher code, but fully convincing to any man of ordinary intelligence. Estel, I think, is a man of rather more than ordinary brains, and the evidence that will be set before him will give him a sudden shock and a complete awakening."

"I think I can understand now," said Brockett, "why so many attempts were made to rob us on the road."

"Exactly," concurred the colonel. "And now, boys, I have something else I entrust to your keeping—a little addition to the messages you must give Gomez Estel. Here are some papers taken from your friend Baron Zollern—papers which were sent to me from Little Rock, with instructions to give them to you as soon as you reached me. They will pretty nearly clinch the case, so far as Estel is concerned, as they contain notice to Baron Zollern that he will be appointed governor of a Brazilian province when everything has been properly adjusted. Rather foolish of the Kaiser, don't you think? However that may be, here's the documents. Add them to whatever you already have in stock for Gomez Estel, and start for Rancho Nogal whenever you feel so disposed. I can't even send a cavalry escort across the river with you—Estel would take to the high seas if he saw a soldier's trooper up preaching. You will have to look out for yourselves and for the safety of your letters."

Under the rich light of the Mexican moon, two young horsemen rode the trail that leads to Rancho Nogal. Both boys could ride fairly well, though neither could lay claim to the skill of a cowboy, and the thoughtful old colonel had provided them with mounts. "If you can stick on your horses," said he, "it will shorten the distance to the Rancho, and may also carry you out of danger if anybody stops you on the way." Well-provided with directions, and with heavy cavalry revolvers buckled at their hips, the messengers set out on the last stage of their journey in royal spirits. Six troopers saw them safely across the Rio Grande, and dismissed them with waving of hats and urgent requests to be back in time for the deciding ball game. The group of friendly horsemen faded into shadows and then blended with the night; dark stretches of shadowy chaparral advanced in gloom in contest with the bright rays of the moon—and the boys, bearing messages whose vast importance they had never known till that same day, rode onward through the dusk, mile after mile. They expected to make Rancho Nogal about daybreak, if all went smoothly—but the progress of these youngsters, somehow or other, never seemed to have much smoothness anywhere along its line.

Perhaps ten miles from the river, they encountered a slight rise in the road, and walked their horses slowly up the grade. Suddenly, as the moon-rays fell upon the summit of the incline, a solitary horseman loomed up, huge and menacing in the shadowy light.

"I don't like the looks of that fellow," whispered Brockett as they neared the silent figure.

"He doesn't look specially good to me, either," replied Solano. "Still, there are two of us, and there's only one of him—no, I'm mistaken. He is distinctly plural."

cry, they voiced no shout or threat, but the clatter of the hoofs and the clanging of accoutrements made wild discord on the evening air. Down the thread-like trail, striding every nerve to increase their horses' speed, fled the messengers and, fast closing up the distance, the nine pursuing riders sped along behind.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

There was little chance for the fugitives, even had their lead been twice as long, for the inexperienced rider has small show against the man who has lived from childhood in the saddle. It was only a few minutes before the grim pursuers overhauled them, swept alongside, and checked their horses by strong hands upon the bridle. Solano drew his revolver, and then, quickly realizing the helplessness of his situation, calmly returned it to its resting place. Brockett drove his right fist, viciously, into the face of the nearest rider, but was wrapped round with powerful arms before he could strike a second blow. Then the cavalcade, escorting the prisoners, turned, rode out of the little crossroad, and trotted slowly up the hill. Descending the farther slope, they rode on in the same dead silence for perhaps an hour. Coming to a thicket beside the road, they wheeled into its dark stretches, threaded their way along a narrow track in single file, and emerged upon a clearing, in which a camp-fire blazed brightly, while some fifty men were lounging round the flames. A sentry's challenge was given and answered; the horsemen dismounted, plucked their horses, and assisted the prisoners to the ground.

A big, superbly-molded fellow, standing some ten feet from the flames, seemed to be in full authority, and the boys were led towards him when he waved his hand. Richly dressed, heavily armed, the freighted, playing over his dark, fierce countenance, he looked the part of the operatic villain or the musical brigand. Receiving the boys with a smile that showed his strong white teeth in thorough Roosevelt fashion, he motioned them to seats upon two huge Mexican saddles near by, he himself remaining standing.

"I speak but ver' poor English," he apologized. "You—one of you—speak Spanish, si?"

Solano promptly took up the conversation, interpreting sentence by sentence to Brockett, who sat calmly by, occasionally interposing pointed comments which the Cuban rapidly translated to their captor.

"I am glad to meet you two young caballeros," ran the suave speech of the big brigand, smiles rippling through his words. "There are reasons for my pleasure in making your acquaintance. The fact is, caballeros, that two gentlemen—not one, but two, such is my uncommon good fortune—have made me great offers for your capture—or, rather, for certain documents, letters or messages which you bear concealed upon you. These messages, if I understand rightly, are addressed to Gomez Estel, who makes his headquarters at the Rancho Nogal, and it appears to be of great interest to these two gentlemen that the documents should never reach him. Do I state the case correctly?"

"Ask him," Brockett cut in, "if he has any objections to telling us who the gentlemen of such liberality may be?"

GAVE ANTI-SCREEN ORDINANCE READING

Council at Meeting Yesterday Afternoon Took First Action on Proposed Measure.

An ordinance designed to prohibit the use of screens in saloons and barrooms after the prescribed closing hours and on Sundays was given its first reading by the Council at its meeting yesterday afternoon and will be given its second reading at the next regular meeting of the Council on Tuesday, May 14. This ordinance or one of its type, is a necessary corollary to the enforcement of the Sunday closing ordinance, and the one requiring that saloons close at eleven o'clock, as in the absence of one ordinance would be easily made. The exact text of the ordinance as drawn up by City Attorney W. H. Dougherty is as follows:

An ordinance to preserve peace and good order and to restrain and prevent vice and immorality, by regulating the conditions under which the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be made.

The Mayor and Council of the City of Janesville do ordain as follows:

Sec. 1. No person, firm or corporation holding a license from the City of Janesville for the vending or dealing in, strong, spirituous, malt, or intoxicating liquors shall, between the hours of eleven o'clock in the afternoon of any day and five o'clock in the morning of the next day, or at any time or hour of the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, or at any time on the day on which any election shall be held, suffer, or permit any of the windows or doors of, or leading to, the room or place where such liquors are so kept and sold to be screened, covered, or in any manner protected, by any partition or device whatever, so as to prevent or obstruct a clear and distinct view of said room, and the bar therein, from the street or alley upon which said room or place is located; nor shall said doors or windows be constructed of any material or in any manner so as to prevent or obstruct such clear and distinct view as aforesaid. It being required by this act that at all of the times above mentioned the said barroom and the bar therein shall be open to plain and convenient view from the street or alley upon which said room or place is located.

Sec. 2. Every person, firm or corporation so licensed to vend, sell, deal or traffic in strong, spirituous, malt, or intoxicating liquors in the said city of Janesville shall keep burning, in the room or place where said liquors are so kept and sold, between the hours of 11 o'clock P. M. and five o'clock A. M. in each day, except an otherwise herein ordered, a sufficient light to enable all parts of said room or place to be distinctly seen from the street or alley upon which said place is located; and on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday and on the day of any election such light shall be so kept and lighted between the hour of sundown on said day and five o'clock A. M. the day following.

Sec. 3. Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not less than $25.00 and not more than $100.00.

Sec. 4. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after ten days following its passage and upon its publication, which said publication shall be for three successive days, during the said term of ten days.

CARE OF BASEBALL PLAYERS A SCIENCE—LITTLE APPRECIATED BY GENERAL FAN

Modern baseball is a science. The fan knows that this is true on the diamond, but few appreciate the skill that is required off the diamond by those who do not figure in the box scores or in the reports. The care bestowed upon some of the $15,000 and $20,000 batteries would make old Cap Anson and the other veterans of those sterner days when not even a padded glove was used by the catcher, think they were in a hospital instead of a valued cog in a baseball machine. All the major league teams are now alive in this respect. The Cleveland Naps think that they have in Doc White, however, a star in his little berthed department, who is a very important asset. One of the Naps who raised a slight blister during the opening game, commented to have his picture taken as the foot was being attended by White at training quarters. Within the scope of the trainer's work may come any kind of work from the use of antiseptics on a spike wound to the setting of bones, and in any case the promptest cure possible is expected for the loss of a player may mean the loss of a game.

AMERICAN REFUGEES FROM MEXICO. AMERICAN REFUGEES FEAR FOR FRIENDS LEFT BEHIND.

Obedient the proclamation issued more than two weeks ago by President Taft, directing all Americans and other foreigners to vacate Mexico as quickly as possible, a number of American refugees arrived here yesterday morning on the steamer City of Sydney. Stories of raids, burning of towns, and the destroying of railroads and telegraph wires, are told by the refugees. Jacob H. Koch, assistant cashier of a bank in Stockton, and his wife, are among those who were forced to take hurried leave from the troubled republic. Koch was in the City of Mexico when the American Ambassador urgently requested that he and his wife depart as soon as they could. Koch and his wife left the city the next day by train for Acapulco. While en route, several bridges were burned and the train delayed. Charles Reid and his daughter, Mabel, from Canada; A. L. Buchlin, a merchant in Mexico; G. F. Smith, a lumberman of Oakland, and John Henderson, a planter, also were among those who heeded the warning of President Taft.
